Privacy Policy

Scope

Atracsys understands the importance of mutual confidentialy and keeping the data private, and thus, this privacy policy further outlines how Atracsys safeguards the information collected through its website.

By using this website, you agree to our Privacy Policy updated on March 25, 2019.

Non-personal information

Atracsys refers to the generic information that can be collected via its website as non-personal information, as it does not identify an individual rather provides insight into location, date and time, gathered from the web browsers used when the website is accessed.

Non-personal information may be collected upon visiting of the website or upon downloads from the website. Whilst browsing or downloading from our website, no personal information is collected an the following information cannot be obtained: first/last name, email, address, etc.

Cookies

Please note that our website uses cookies. In the case the cookies are accepted, there will be a text file placed in the user's browser titled « cookies » each time a user visits the website. The cookies are stored in user's computer's hard drive. The information collected via cookies is non-personal information. The user is free to decline cookies, provided that the web browser allows such option. Third-party cookies are not allowed on our website.

Use of non-personal information

The non-personal information collected via our website is stored and is not processed or shared with third-parties.

Modifications to privacy policy

Should there be a modification to our privacy policy, a notice will be temporarily posted on the home page of our website for reference and information, outlining the significant changes below.

Website security

Atracsys understands the importance of mutual website security and undertakes all necessary steps to protec the information from loss, misuse, unauthorized access, disclosure, alteration, or destruction.